

Moise Blanc

Moise (a.k.a. Moses) has worked for many organizations over the past several years in a variety of capacities. We are delighted to have him at the heart of our work in Haiti. He is a man full of laughter, life and integrity. Moise works with our groups as a translator and security. He also acts as liaison for our affairs in our absence. He negotiates financial matters for us and is greatly useful in helping us manage the learning curve of doing ministry in their culture.

On top of everything else, Moise loves Jesus and is subject to be caught singing worship songs as loud as possible!

Fritson Geneus

Fritson is a longtime friend and acquaintance of Martina (Mama). When Mama's husband died, the lack of a male role model was very challenging. Fritson felt compelled to assist her as often and as much as he could.

Fritson's day job is a police captain in Kenscoff (part of Port au Prince).

Often he would take a collection from his fellow officers on payday to help Mama buy food for the children. Upon meeting Moise on day, he asked him if he was to run across any Americans looking to help, please bring them their way.

Fritson continues to provide a male influence in the orphanage on nearly a daily basis. He helps keep the lines of communication open with us while we are in the U.S. What a blessing he is to us and the children!

Martina (Mama) Etienne

“Mama” is a widow of a pastor. Her husband was such a man of vision and compassion. The facility at La Colline is a testament to the tremendous faith of a man of God. But when he passed away a few years before the earthquake of 2010, her life was in shambles.

Mama, struggled to provide for the children (her own as well as the orphans) and was pressured by people of the area that had become accustomed to the generosity of the pastor and she fled to the city with the children to find hope and refuge. Her sister agreed that she could stay on the property she owned in Port au Prince in Delmas 33. It wasn't much but Port au Prince had more charitable opportunity for the children than did the more rural parts.

Mama is without a doubt, one of the sweetest ladies on earth. I have rarely seen anyone that would sacrifice so much so children can have something. How she has managed to stay alive along with these children is a miracle in and of itself.

Mama told us a story after we began working with them. She told us of a dream she had. In the dream she was crying and asking God how she would survive. In this dream, an angel came down to her and told her to stop crying. The angel said, "I have already sent someone to you". With tears in her eyes, relating this story she said, "One week later, you and Michelle came to us!" God is always in control!

Kate Strein

Kate was a member of the first team that visited Haiti in 2010 along with Michelle. A friendship was born that has now continued through countless trips since HH4H was born. She has become a part of not only the HH4H family, but also the Carver family. We have teased her by calling her our “tour guide Barbie” but in truth she has been increasingly irreplaceable. She serves selflessly every summer, raises money for us and volunteers to do absolutely anything we ask or need. She creates our schedule of events for the teams and coordinates activities and even cooks breakfast on occasion.

Blondy Michel

Blondy is our adopted children, Kerby and Kerlandy’s older brother. Unfortunately, he was too old for us to adopt but it hasn’t stopped us from having him as our son. We don’t need paperwork for that! Blondy has been apprenticing under Moise for the past 3 years and has become an invaluable part of our staff. He has learned the English language very well and works as a translator and does so many other tasks for us there are too many to count.

We look forward to his increasing role as we take our residence in Haiti, where he will live with us; his family!
